WESTERN PACIFIC SERVICE

Through Trains on New Gould Line Will Run on August 22.

The Gould Western Pacific will inaugurate through passenger service from Salt Lake City, and in connection with the Denver and Rio Grande, from Denver and Pueblo, to San Francisco on August 22. This announcement was received in a telegram sent by E. L. Lomax, passenger traffic manager of the new line, to C. L. Stone, passenger traffic manager of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain.

The schedule adopted for the present provides for train No. 4, east bound, to leave San Francisco at 6 p. m., arriving at Salt Lake City at 8 o'clock on the second morning following.

Train No. 3, west bound, will leave Salt Lake City at 11:30 p. m., arriving at San Francisco at noon of the second day following.

Equipment will include standard Pullman and tourist sleeping cars between San Francisco, Salt Lake City and Denver, connecting with the Missouri Pacific trains at Pueblo, and dining cars and day coaches are included in the regular train equipment.

Two features of the Western Pacific will be its library-club cars and the fact that every passenger car it owns will be of steel throughout.

Regular daily service will be inaugurated on the new road on August 22, between San Francisco and Oroville, Cal., also.

The Saving of Manure.

The saving of manure is a matter which is becoming more and more important for the farmers of Missouri each year. There was a time when manure was of little value so far as the immediate results were concerned, but on most lands that time has long since past. The decreased productivity of our soils under grain and timothy hay farming, together with the great increase in the value of these lands in recent years, demands more careful systems of farm management if these soils are to pay interest on their valuation. In these systems the farmer should figure manure worth at least $2.00 per ton and he should get that much or more from it by its proper handling and application. As a matter of fact, a ton of barnyard manure will frequently bring $3.00 or more in increased crop yields during the years following its application, when its benefit can be observed.

Many farmers who feed practically all their crops on the farm still get little value from the manure produced. Too frequently they feed in a sheltered grove on a well drained hillside where the manure is largely washed away and where such accumulations as occur are in the timber so that little return is secured from them. Again, it is customary to feed around the barn with no protection being given to the manure and it frequently leaches until it loses half its fertilizing value. It is just as necessary therefore, that the manure be properly handled and gotten back on the fields where it belongs, as it is that the cattle be fed at all, so far as the keeping up of the land is concerned. The time is upon us on practically all lands in Missouri, when every effort should be made to preserve, and to return to the fields, the fertilizing material derived from the crops fed.
